Many American students may have had a painful experience with Chinese school. Miss Maggie believes kids learn best in a happy, creative and trust environment. Combining her strong background in Theatre art and many years of Mandarin teaching experiences, Miss Maggie has created her own curriculum with a focus on helping students with daily life conversations in Mandarin, encouraging students to learn Mandarin by being actively engaged in the process of speaking and listening. She has also included creative activities, which motivate students towards learning how to write and read in a fun way.
