

RIGHT AT SCHOOL

Dear AASA Member:

AASA, The School Superintendents Association, is pleased to welcome Right At School as the official after school provider of the nation's premier organization for school district leadership. Right At School partners with school districts across the country to provide world-class, parent-paid before and after school enrichment programs to more than 20,000 students every day in their own schools. Here are some of Right At School's core benefits for school districts:

- No cost to school districts: Right At School's before and after school programs are free for school districts. In fact, they share revenue back with their school district partners!
- Headache free: Right At School handles all of the program implementation and administration (taking the headache off your administrators before and after school). They provide the structure, curriculum, and a highly-trained staff.
- High-quality curriculum: Right At School's curriculum supports state standards, the Kennedy Fine Art Standards and CASEL's social-emotional learning standards. Most importantly, it is fun and engaging for students.
- Support District Objectives – Right At School is able to customize its after-school program and curriculum to align with, and support, key district objectives.

Right At School is a tremendous partner to school districts across the country. We welcome them as a strategic partner and encourage you to learn more by visiting their website at www.rightatschool.com/districtleaders.

Sincerely,

Daniel A. Domenech
